

(ANC) The 73rd anniversary of the bombing in Hiroshima, Japan is this week, Alazia Williams of NCC News talked to this Central New York organization about what they are doing to commemorate the event. (0:09)

(TRACK 1)

It's been over 70 years since the bombing of Hiroshima and citizens all across the U-S are still commemorating the event. The Peace Council of Syracuse is having a Hiroshima Day Procession to bring awareness of this tragedy that happened so long ago. Event Coordinator, Caroline Tihanyi explains.

<"Its a way to remember the people who died at Hiroshima, Nagasaki and it's also a form of protest because we feel like it was an atrocity that this happened. ">

(Track 2)

Tihanyi also says The Peace Council is focused on the future without another event like Hiroshima.
